The Shape of Thought

Alejandra Topete Gallery is pleased to present The Shape of Thought, a collective exhibition celebrating one year in its newly renovated space. This anniversary marks a moment of reflection and gratitude toward the artists who have shared their creative visions within its walls.

Curated by Alejandra Topete, the exhibition explores geometry and abstraction as territories of thought—spaces where intuition and structure converge. Each participating artist reveals a unique approach to translating the intangible into form, offering a glimpse into the diverse ways in which ideas take visual shape.

The Shape of Thought invites viewers to move through the gallery with attentiveness and openness, engaging with works that reflect on perception, rhythm, and order. The exhibition becomes both a dialogue among artists and an introspective encounter for each visitor: a meditation on the ways thought itself can be seen, felt, and materialized.

EMILIO GARCÍA PLASCENCIA

Born in Mexico City in 1974

His primary interest is space exploration and the relationship between human beings and their surroundings, such as the complex significance of experimenting with the various materials and shapes that exist in the world. García Plascencia seeks to evoke feelings and vivid impressions in different natural and human-made spaces.

Self-taught.

He was an apprentice of Daniel Argimón, Philip Bragar, Saint Clair Cemin, Jene Highstein, Javier Marín, Ricardo Mazal, Manfred Muller, Kyoto Ota, Ray Smith, and Mario Torres Peña.

He has studied Fine Arts at the Escuela Mazzana de Artes y Oficios and the Escuela de Bellas Artes de Barcelona in Spain, as well as at The School of Visual Arts in New York City. He also has Studies in Architecture at Universidad Iberoamericana and Human Anatomy at the Facultad de Medicina de la Universidad Anáhuac.

JASON KREIGLER

I have a deep interest in the stories, applications, materials, and techniques that have been told through textiles and the people that create them: the historical nature of artificial creations from different regions, tribes, or villages that construct these intricate pieces. Men and women contribute to the creation of unique works through textile making. Ceremonial, everyday use, wearables, trade, or decoration: shapes, patterns, color, and ideas unfold through the centuries.

The people and textiles of West Africa inspire this body of work. Ghana, Togo, Benin, and Burkina Faso.

Design, pattern, color. Line, shape, and form. Extracting stories through the life of textiles, from my encounters with different tribes and the people who wear them. The stories that are told evoke a sense of pride and history.

Extracting old ideas into modern, contemporary thoughts.

ERNESTO GARCÍA SANCHEZ

The artist's work is a continuous process of exploring form, driven by their curiosity about the vast world of painting. Their morphological investigations are not merely a resource but the core and purpose of their practice, in which visual synthesis captures and represents the complexity of phenomena that enable them to understand their surroundings.

Through painting, drawing, and sculpture, their abstract compositions acquire meaning, using a language that borrows the simplicity and balance of design and architecture almost as an act of meditation.

Throughout their career, the artist has demonstrated a profound interest in exploring the pictorial phenomenon not only as a medium, but also as a subject and genre. They seek to challenge the conventional perception of the painting, proposing a more dynamic vision that transcends the two-dimensionality with which painting is often perceived.

JOHN R. THOMPSON

John Thompson (Schenectady, New York, 1947) is an eccentric artist who has lived between Mérida and Mexico City for 18 years. While he maintains visibility through his project space "108ag_projects" in Colonia Juárez, his work exists outside mainstream Mexican art circles and genealogies. He operates with the dedication of an outsider artist, though not strictly so defined.

Thompson transforms geometric art by converting rationalist rigidity into organic, bulbous forms that challenge the polished aesthetic of abstract geometric tradition. His sculptural reliefs feature protuberances that introduce a tactile, corporeal element rarely seen in geometric work. Through obsessive pictorial repetitions and the lumpy materiality of his pieces, Thompson creates what could be called a fleshy, carnal geometry. This unconventional approach establishes his unique position in the tradition of geometric abstraction, embodying an extravagant reinterpretation of typically austere formal language.

JULIO PASTOR

Julio Pastor is a Mexican visual artist who explores the urban landscape and architectural decay as records of collective memory and social identity. Born in 1981 in Mexico City, his interest emerged when he began drawing the unfinished structure of the Hotel de México (now the WTC) as seen from the Espacio Escultórico at UNAM—an experience that sparked his fascination with incomplete urban symbols.

A graduate of UNAM with a Master of Fine Arts from the Dutch Art Institute, he uses abandoned buildings and ruins as metaphors in his work. The pastor conceives of layers of graffiti and the wear of materials as geological strata that defy time and document social history through architecture.

His pieces transform these structures—whether they collapse in earthquakes or erode slowly—into essential witnesses to the landscape. The artist argues that ruins are a visible consequence of “unresolved issues within society,” turning art into a medium for reflecting on the city’s failures and identity.

REBECA CORS

Rebeca Cors (Mexico, 1988) studied Industrial Design at Universidad Iberoamericana and Visual Arts at Central Saint Martins in London. Inspired by her surroundings, natural and cultural diversity, and artisanal traditions, Cors merges her vision with her roots to preserve traditional craft techniques. Her practice explores the boundaries between sculpture and functional objects, creating what she defines as Abstract Sculpture and Utilitarian Sculpture.

Through abstractions of the human body and geological formations, her pieces invite contemplation and balance, conveying serenity and fostering a meditative dialogue with the material. In her visual language, simplicity becomes the synthesis of complexity.

Her work has been exhibited at Territorio Gallery (Mexico City, 2025), Johs Gallery (Mexico City, 2024), Zona MACO (2020–2024), Design Week Mexico (2016–2022), and the Museo Rufino Tamayo (Mexico City, 2016, 2017), among others. She has received recognition from Architectural Digest magazine and the MUAC-UNAM.

'I talk a lot about those monsters that we have in our heads and that we spend our whole lives trying to silence'.

WILLIAM GABER

México (1968). William Gaber is an artist who divides his time between Mexico City, Madrid, Spain, and Yucatán.

Gaber has developed his vocation through self-study, under the tutelage of various teachers in Mexico, and through assistantships in workshops led by recognized artists. His most recent courses include the Talleres del Prado in Madrid and the Royal College of Art in London.

William Gaber's work spans painting, drawing, ready-made objects, sculpture, and digital art. The choice and diversity of media in his language are integral to his identity as an artist, not driven by whim or chance, but positioning him as an artist of his time and a keen, ingenious observer of reality.

El Centro Andaluz de Arte Contemporáneo (CAAC), dependiente de la Consejería de Cultura y Deporte de la Junta de Andalucía, presenta la primera exposición individual de la artista cubana Claribel Calderius (La Habana, Cuba, 1986) en una institución española. Esta muestra marca un hito en su carrera al ofrecer un proyecto exclusivo y único, concebido íntegramente para la Capilla de San Bruno, un espacio cargado de historia y resonancias espirituales, que converge con el universo simbólico de su obra.

DIÁLOGOS. Artistas mujeres en la COLECCIÓN ELLA FONTANALS-CISNEROS

Claribel Calderius, artista de la Alejandra Topete Gallery, presenta su obra en la colección de "Ella Fontanals-Cisneros", una muestra que exhibe el trabajo de 71 creadoras de 23 países. El arte textil de Claribel nos enseña un trabajo de liberación que le permite descargar su rabia, su ira y sus miedos. Todas estas emociones y sentimientos se transforman en monstruos que cubren y transforman el espacio curatorial.

"Todo Vuelve", comisariada por José García, en el Salón Gallos.

"AD Infinitum" en Arenal Habana, realizada durante la Bienal de La Habana, comisariada por Magda González-Mora.

"SocialSubjetiva", comisariada por Andrés Isaac Santana en el Ateneo de Madrid, como parte de las muestras de PhotoEspaña.

EXPERIENCIA PROFESIONAL

Participación en exposiciones personales y colectivas, destacando su enfoque en la exploración de temas autobiográficos y confesionales.

Trabajo con una variedad de medios artísticos para expresar su visión y sus experiencias personales.

Colaboración con comisarios reconocidos en eventos artísticos importantes como la Bienal de La Habana y PhotoEspaña.
